

City Guide New York City

The city that never sleeps

Manhattan's airy cocktail bars

The very fact that New York is such an exciting, dynamic and thrilling place is precisely why you sometimes need to get away from the honking and the hustle and bustle of the metropolis. In the rooftop bars of Manhattan, high above the street canyons, there is a different, calmer soundscape shaped by the clicking of cocktail shakers, happy hour conversations and cool DJ music that's perfectly in tune with the Manhattan skyline.

Which way do you look first? In the east, the silver Chrysler Building gleams, in the south, there's the imposing Empire State Building, and between them, a twinkling sea of city lights –Gramercy's Park South Hotel couldn't be more strategically placed! On top of this, it stocks a wide selection of local beers, an elaborate cocktail menu and an anything but everyday pub menu features stunning items like the Wagyu cheeseburger, parmesan truffle fries, and fiery, marinated prawn skewers.
